

HTTP Request and Response Flow

When a user triggers a supervised training request, the app sends an HTTP request to the server's '/train_supervised' endpoint. The server processes the request and generates a training model file, which is then returned to the app as a training result.

